SERVICEHUB

Find services. Connect with providers. Get work moving.

USER GUIDE & PLATFORM OVERVIEW

A straightforward guide to what ServiceHub is for and how customers and service providers can use it.

THE IDEA

ServiceHub brings service listings and people looking for services together in one place. Customers can explore offers and contact providers; providers can present their services to potential customers.

1. What is ServiceHub?

A place to discover and promote services

ServiceHub is a digital services marketplace. It is designed to help people find service providers and help providers introduce their work to people who may need it.

Rather than searching across many unrelated places, visitors can explore service listings, compare the information providers share, and contact a provider to discuss a possible job.

What ServiceHub aims to help people do

- Find services: browse available categories and look for an offering that matches a need.
- Understand an offer: read the service description, check the stated price, and view examples when supplied.
- Connect: contact a provider using the options shown on the listing or site.
- Promote work: let providers describe their services and show relevant examples to potential customers.
- Start a conversation: ask questions and clarify what a provider can deliver before agreeing to work.

Keep in mind
A listing being visible on ServiceHub does not automatically guarantee that the provider is genuine or that every claim is accurate. Review the information carefully and ask questions before making a commitment.

2. How customers can use ServiceHub

From searching to contacting a provider

Step 1 — Open the site

Visit servicehub-amber.vercel.app in your browser.

Step 2 — Explore services

Use the categories or browsing options shown on the page to explore the types of services available. If you already know what you need, use the search field when available and enter a clear word or phrase describing the service.

Step 3 — Read a listing

Open a listing that looks relevant. Read the description, check the stated price and any conditions, and look at any portfolio examples or media the provider has included. Do not assume that a sample proves every claim; use it as a starting point for questions.

Step 4 — Contact the provider

Use the chat, comment, or contact option displayed on the page. Explain what you need and ask the provider to clarify anything that is not clear. If a sign-in or display-name prompt appears, follow the instructions shown on screen.

Step 5 — Agree on the work

Before paying or asking the provider to begin, agree on the work to be delivered, the deadline, the price, what revisions are included, and how files will be handed over. Keep a written record of the agreement.

Good practice
Compare more than one suitable listing when possible. Avoid sharing passwords, one-time codes, or unnecessary private information with a provider.

3. How providers can use ServiceHub

Present your services clearly

Step 1 — Prepare your listing

Before opening the listing form, prepare a clear service title, a short description of what you offer, your price, your provider or business name, and any portfolio media you want to include if the form supports it.

Step 2 — Complete the listing form

Open the site's listing or service-submission option and fill in the requested fields. Choose the most accurate service category, describe what is included, and make pricing and limitations easy to understand. Complete all required fields marked by the form.

Step 3 — Check everything before submitting

- Check spelling and make sure the title describes the service accurately.
- Use examples that you created or have permission to share.
- State whether the displayed price is fixed, a starting price, or subject to discussion if the form allows that explanation.
- Do not include false claims, private customer details, or misleading portfolio examples.

Step 4 — Follow the on-screen instructions

Submit the form and read the confirmation or next-step instructions. If the site requests a listing fee, follow only the payment instructions presented by the current website. Keep any listing reference or payment code shown to you, along with your payment evidence, in case you need help later.

Step 5 — Respond to enquiries

When customers contact you, respond clearly and professionally. Confirm the scope, price, deadline, revisions, and delivery method before beginning the work.

4. Understanding listings and payments

What to check on the pages you use

Listing information

- Service title: the main work being offered.
- Description: what the provider says they will do and what is included.
- Price and currency: the amount displayed and the currency shown beside it.
- Portfolio or media: examples the provider chooses to share, if available.
- Contact options: the ways the site allows you to ask questions or start a conversation.

If a listing fee is requested

Some provider listing flows may request a fee. Read the amount, currency, payment instructions, and any reference code carefully before proceeding. Keep your receipt or transaction details. If the page does not clearly explain what to do next, pause and use the site's stated support/contact route if one is provided.

If a listing or payment seems delayed

Read the status message on the site and allow the stated processing time, if one is shown. Keep the listing reference and payment evidence. Avoid paying a second time just because a page appears delayed; first check the status and seek help through the available support route.

Important
Do not treat a screenshot, message, or payment narration by itself as a guarantee that a listing has been approved. Check the status shown by ServiceHub and follow the instructions on the site.

5. Chat, comments and responsible use

Communicate clearly and respectfully

When contacting a provider

- Explain the service you need and the result you expect.
- Ask about availability, delivery time, price, and what is included.
- Keep the conversation relevant and respectful.
- Save important agreements and delivery details.

When responding as a provider

- Answer questions honestly and avoid promising results you cannot guarantee.
- Confirm the project requirements before starting.
- Do not ask customers to share passwords or one-time verification codes.

Reviews and comments

If the site provides review or comment features, use them honestly and constructively. Discuss your actual experience, avoid insults, and do not publish another person's private information.

Trust and safety

ServiceHub helps people discover and connect, but users should still make their own checks. Be cautious if someone pressures you to act immediately, changes agreed terms without explanation, or asks for unnecessary sensitive information. Stop and seek advice from a trusted adult if a situation feels unsafe or suspicious.

6. Quick troubleshooting

Simple checks users can make

Issue	What to try
You cannot find a service	Try a shorter or more specific search phrase, explore related categories, or check again later as listings may change.
A listing lacks details	Contact the provider and ask for the missing information before agreeing to the work.
The contact or chat option is not working	Reload the page, check your internet connection, and try again. If the issue continues, use any support/contact route displayed on the site.
You are unsure whether a listing was submitted	Look for the on-screen confirmation or listing status. Keep any reference shown during submission.
A payment step is unclear	Do not guess or pay again immediately. Re-read the page, retain your transaction details, and ask for help through the stated contact route if available.
